OVERVIEW

Humanity Crew is an international aid organization specializing in the provision of first response mental health interventions and psychological aid to refugees and people in crisis. Humanity Crew works to deploy mental health and psychosocial support to displaced populations in order to improve their mental health and wellbeing, to restore order in their lives, and to prevent further psychological escalation. Humanity Crew seeks to create a world in which mental health support is a fundamental component in all emergency efforts for victims of humanitarian crises.

For another year we have seen mental health sidelined in the field of humanitarian aid, and especially in the refugee crisis in Europe. Even though there is partial new recognition and relatively more programming dedicated to mental health, there still remains a serious lack of understanding in regards to integrating mental health as a fundamental component of all emergency relief within all host countries and NGOs working in the humanitarian aid space. Our fourth active year was bigger than ever! Our progress and expansion has been recognized through the acknowledgment of King Philip’s Princess Girona Award, the showcasing of one of our projects in the Paris Fashion Week, the participation at the Skoll World Forum on Social Entrepreneurship in Oxford, England, a number of new research reports, and two new funds, amongst other accomplishments.

We still believe there is no health without mental health, and our collective focus must include mental health being on a professional and organized scale within humanitarian aid.

During 2019 we worked tirelessly with our partners in Greece and around the world, providing countless mental health related services, including community-based activities, and individual sessions for refugees, as well as training programs for volunteers and aid workers. We made sure to tailor all our activities to the needs and uniqueness of the beneficiaries, refugees and fellow organizations. Our programs are listed below.

almost every day in all aspects of their life, and from the very first day of arriving to a new country. This year we launched our Anti-Bullying Project to combat issues within the educational system in order to eliminate bullying and reduce the mental health damage the refugees face on a daily basis. Research has shown that bullied groups are far more likely than average to experience a stressful or traumatic situation. Discrimination and bullying can make refugees feel isolated, fearful, lonely, powerless, and reduce their confidence, which may lead to depression and self-harm/suicidal behavior. It affects refugees emotionally and mentally and keeps them from reaching their full potential and achieving a healthy integrative process. This, in return, is not healthy for the host societies and therefore for the host countries.
Bullying must be tackled from the ground up in order to achieve a healthier, less violent, and more welcoming society. Our solution to combat these issues is by:

• Developing bullying prevention programs for schools and educate teachers and counselors about bullying directed at refugees.
• Creating mentorship programs that partner local and refugee students.
• Teaching refugee parents about bullying and showing them how they can support their children.
• Cultural orientation activities/ classes in refugee camps that teach local Western culture.
• Media campaigns that promote anti-discrimination and anti-bullying rhetoric.

This year started by comprising the steering committee and by presenting workshops on anti-bullying in various partner locations. We have also approached the Ministry of Education and various public schools and have accumulated many recommendations in regards to better implement our goals in the upcoming remaining years of the program.

CABUWAZI

CABUWAZI is committed to a dedicated, tolerant Berlin youth and works actively in the prevention of violence and addiction and sees itself as a place for social integration, cultural education and individual health promotion. Our team was invited to provide special training for the youth circus organization where we trained 12 teachers for a new project, where they will be working alongside young people that have gone through traumatic events. CABUWAZI believes that high wire walking can help deal with, and possibly overcome, traumatic events and wanted us to provide training on trauma and traumatic stress. Our training with them covered trauma definitions, trauma and stressor-related disorders, effects of trauma, management and resilience.

Echo Library

Echo Library, a mobile library project launched in October 2016, provides access to learning resources to teenage and adult refugees living in and around the Athens region. In March, HC collected, organized and shipped eight large boxes to Athens and donated to Echo Refugee Library hundreds of books in Arabic to add to their library. The books varied from novels to children’s literature and encyclopedias. The joint project aimed to encourage reading and raise awareness of the importance of education as the first step to freedom.

The missions are made by teams formed up of participants from different disciplines and training experiences, with their main objective being to directly support the refugees in their daily lives. As partners of the UNINTEGRA project we were responsible to provide training for their staff and volunteers who are based in Athens.
OUR VOLUNTEERS

In 2019, our volunteer training program was a continued success. Run by a team of mental health professionals, we led 3 open-for-all training covering 20 hours of material each. The trainings offered background information about the locations we work in, the current refugee situation, intensive Psychological First Aid (PFA), resilience tools, appropriate recreational activities, psycho-educational activities, intervention tools, EMDR elements, cultural mediation tools, scenario simulations, focus group activation, and the code of conduct of volunteering.

During 2019 we have completed 10 long-term missions in Europe with over 20 qualified volunteers supporting our mental health professional team in the field. Our coordinators, working alongside our volunteers, tailor programs for the populations we work with by using the volunteers’ skill sets, passions, hobbies, careers, or education. The volunteers then have a tailored program which caters to their interest, but is also written to be applied professionally in the field. In addition, our volunteers assist us locally where we often hold events, training, lectures, workshops, and exhibitions for the local community to raise awareness.

Among the programs provided by our volunteers were: Poetry, story telling, movie making, mindfulness, Yoga, meditation, fitness, medical consultancy, health care, cooking, language lessons.

Ayman Nahas
Actor and comedian Ayman Nahas held four shadow-theatre workshops in different community centers and shelters in Athens, Greece, as a volunteer with Humanity Crew. 46 Children created their own shadow puppets and told their stories. The aim of these workshops was to raise awareness on bullying as part of our anti-bullying project.
Part of our 2019 activities and efforts of raising awareness have been aimed at other NGOs’ staff, service providers, volunteers, and mental health professionals in the field. Our mental health experts implemented educational workshops and informative training in mental health related issues, as well as cultural mediated tips on working with Syrian, Iraqi and other Arabic speaking people. In 2019 we have completed over 35 training and workshops in the UK, Greece, Turkey, Belgium, and Italy, including training tailored specifically for institutions like the Red Cross, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, CABUWAZI circus, and Campfire Innovation. RAISING AWARENESS

The Humanity Crew team has been active in raising awareness worldwide in regards to the current mental health status of refugees and the importance of mental health in that context. In 2019, we held over 30 talks in conferences, forums, universities, schools, embassies, and private NGOs on the importance of mental health aid for refugees. Some of the initiatives that we took part in 2019 include Paris Fashion Week in France, Skoll World Forum in the United Kingdom, PICUM in Belgium, and the Attachment and Trauma Congress in Italy.

LINES OF LIFE | PARIS FASHION WEEK

“Lines of Life” is a collaborative project by the Middle East Fashion Runway winner, Saher Okal, and Humanity Crew. The collaborative project is based on Saher’s field mission with HC as reported on in 2018, where he used his skills as a fashion designer to teach women in various partner organizations on how to better produce products and the best ways to take advantage of their skills. During Saher’s mission, he also worked with children and drew inspiration from their strengths and drawings.

Saher’s entire collection of “Lines of Life” was inspired by his mission with Humanity Crew in Athens. It depicts the journey of the children and what they have witnessed and felt along the way; from fear and the pain of losing their homes and homeland, through the challenges of land, sea, and people, and eventually to their heroic ability and determination to keeping their unaltering hope and rebuilding their lives. Saher’s dress designs, influenced by the children’s drawings, were picked and showcased in the renowned Paris Fashion Week.

In recognition of Saher’s work, Paris Fashion Week invited Humanity Crew and Saher to present their collaboration in January. We addressed our mission and the inspirational dresses, as well as the refugee’s hopes and dreams through incredible designs. It was unique to see an NGO and a renowned fashion designer collaborate on an international level to raise awareness of the mental health of refugees.

ISC INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE
In May, our mental health director, Dr. Essam Daod was a main speaker at the ISC International organized conference, “Attachment and Trauma Congress: Dissociation and Integration of the Personality” which took place in Rome, Italy. ISC was founded in 2005 and aims to offer highly qualified training services in the fields of psychotherapy and neuroscience. Their goal is to meet therapists’ need to constantly update their knowledge of the most advanced and efficient therapies from a scientific point of view. Their first conference took place in 2014, and has been an annual prestigious event ever since. This year’s conference was attended by 1,200 participants coming from 36 different countries around the world.

Dr. Daod’s talk during this year’s conference was titled “From Isolation to Integration: The Journey of the Refugees’ Psyche”, and acknowledged a new paradigm that illustrates the journey of the refugees’ psyche. The talk was inspired by our large body of data collected by our trained mental health professionals and volunteers at refugee camps and the shores of Greece over the span of three years, which presents four psychological mental stages. These stages describe the refugees’ psychological state at each step of their journey, and subsequently, the way they should be approached by mental health workers in the field.

THE MINERVA CENTER FOR THE RULE OF LAW UNDER EXTREME CONDITIONS
As part of our effort to raise awareness about refugees’ mental health, Ms. Shadia Sbait, Humanity Crew’s strategy and development advisor participated in a round table discussion: “Standardization, regulation, and liability of relief actors” hosted by the University of Haifa alongside members from the “Eco | Encounter Study Institute” and the “EMT Initiative”.

RUN THE WORLD FOR MENTAL HEALTH VIRTUAL 5K
Humanity Crew joined the first worldwide virtual 5K run for mental health!
This incredible event was in partnership with the AB Korkor Foundation for Mental Health with the aim to bring closer attention to the importance of mental health on World Mental Health Day on October 10th. Humanity Crew joined the run alongside inspirational speaker Ashraf Kortam in Haifa, and Safe Place International in Athens.

OUR SECOND INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE
Humanity Crew organized its second international conference in November of 2019 in Athens, Greece entitled “Refugees and mental health: the Role of Culture in the Journey to Resilience and Healing.”
The conference, which took place over the course of two days, was a huge success. The 151 attendees included activists, psychologists, academics, volunteers, social workers, and mental health experts from all over the world.
The workshops given at the conference: Culture and resilience; the resilience of culture:
- The refugee experience from a psychosocial perspective
- Refugee women’s reproductive health challenges
- Working with resilience: Intercultural resources and challenges
- Recapturing cultural identity, Care for the caretakers
- Mindfulness in times of crisis
- Safe and sound
- Culturally-sensitive trauma-informed care
- Prevention of secondary traumatization
- Creative music Process
- The role of culture in the refugee’s mental health services
- The muscle-brain connection as a source of emotional empowerment
- Uncertain trajectories: support for unaccompanied refugee and migrant children.

The conference also included a screening of the short film “One day in Aleppo” by Oscar-nominated director Ali Ibrahim, who was also present at the conference and held a discussion after the screening.

Watch the video of the conference here.
In addition to our field work and expert training and workshops, our research department conducts and leads several field and clinical researches, and publishes reports in academic journals, international conferences, and the media about our findings. We aim to produce more knowledge for ourselves and for other organizations in the field of the mental health of refugees, stressing the role of culture and language in the psychosocial support process.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY

Through our ongoing partnership with Cornell University, Humanity Crew cooperates with students as part of their studies during their MPA and Capstone project at the Cornell Institute of Public Affairs. HC has already been chosen by four different groups in the past, and in 2019 they delivered an additional report addressing the mental health of refugee interpreters working in Greece. The study aimed to examine the relationship between being a refugee with possible trauma exposure and being the interpreter of the traumatic experiences of other refugees in mental health settings.

The approach and findings were especially helpful for us as our job often requires refugees themselves to act as interpreters of other refugees and aid workers, or psychiatrists that do not speak their language. At a glance, it seems logical that an interpreter who experienced the same trauma as the person they are interpreting on behalf of can not only translate words, but also convey the hidden intonations and message behind it. However, by doing so, the interpreter has to relive the trauma multiple times as they are doing their job. Therefore, a close examination of the consequences in these settings will serve extremely helpful for us in our future fieldwork.

During the second half of 2019, another capstone team by CIPA has been formed to collaborate with Humanity Crew once again. This most recent project tackled the topic of looking into educational infrastructures in crisis zone settings. During most of our fieldwork in the past, our expert team realized the extreme lack of educational resources in refugee camps or ad-hoc shelters. In these emergency settings, it is difficult for children to receive adequate education of any sort, despite the fact that over half of the entire refugee population is under the age of 18. This brought our attention to the importance and need for proper educational infrastructure in these crisis zones, and the CIPA capstone team will be providing us with a full report that scrutinizes existing infrastructure and possible recommendations through an extensive literature review, case studies, interviews, and fieldwork.

If you are an institution or a higher education department that hopes to form a similar research collaboration or an internship program with Humanity Crew, please do not hesitate to contact us at media@humanitycrew.org.
In 2019 we launched our pilot for our Online Clinic project. Our Online Clinic is a network of mental health professionals who provide online support for displaced populations around the world through the web (Tele-Therapy). It was designed for vulnerable cases that are out of reach to us from a geographical point of view, and who are in need of continuous MHPSS support. Through our clinic, we are able to reach people who are suffering and do not have access to mental health support, whether it is due to the lack of mental health professionals in the field, language barriers, or geopolitical restrictions. Moreover, the importance of continuity in therapy is a fundamental component in psychosocial support, and it is a way for us to continue our support for vulnerable cases that have been relocated. The remote work we do through our clinic enables more professionals who cannot volunteer on the ground and are from different geographical locations and speak different languages to provide intercultural support without any boundaries.

In January we hosted our last training session for the Online Clinic volunteer mental health experts, and started disseminating the project through coordination meetings and our partners.

In 2019, Humanity Crew has been supported by these generous foundations:

Kathryn McQuade Foundation: Established in 2013, by Kathryn B. McQuadem the foundation strives to make sustainable improvements in women and children’s rights, education and welfare.

Woods and Gil Family Foundation: Established in 2017, the WGFF is a private foundation that makes grants in four key areas: human rights, education, arts and culture, and human services. The Foundation’s focus is on improving the lives of children, families, and communities.

Kahane Foundation: The Foundation was established in 1991 by the late Karl Kahane as an independent, privately funded, non-political and non-religious charitable foundation and it aims to help people create a dignified and peaceful living environment for themselves and their neighbours.

The Global Whole Being Fund: Established in 2016, the GWBF explores holistic ways to embrace human dignity, generosity, and kindness by awarding grants through RSF Social Finance in San Francisco, California.

Adel B. Korkor, M.D. Foundation: With an aim to help make the world a better place for those suffering from mental illness, Adel’s foundation focuses on mental health issues and generously supports mental health care services in underserved areas, provides scholarship grants to support mental health certificate programs at university level, and supports local and national mental health care advocacy organizations, amongst many other initiatives of this spirit.

We thank all our supporters and individual donors for allowing us to implement our work and for their continued belief in our mission!
In the year 2019, Humanity Crew has put in serious effort in order to maximize our presence in various media channels both domestically, and internationally. Our fieldwork, including workshops, conferences, training, visits to crisis zones for emergency relief, as well as trips abroad for awards and lectures, have been featured and continuously published online through our own social media outlets, in order to increase publicity and build a solid brand. Being active on social media and interacting with a global audience has been crucial to exposing our name to the world. As a result, we are now being more proactively sought, not only on social media, but also by more traditional media such as a television news channel or a magazine.

IN THE NEWS

Humanity Crew continues to receive media attention for its accomplishments. In 2019, we have been featured in over 70 news stories and articles in eight different languages including English, Spanish, French, Arabic, Hebrew, Chinese, Greek, and German. Amongst the news stories are videos that were produced by prominent film companies to highlight our efforts to save refugees from trauma.

A majority of the second half of 2019 for Humanity Crew’s prominence in the media can be dedicated to Maria Jammal. Maria being awarded the first-ever international award by the Princess of Girona Foundation has allowed us to share our mission widely and clearly to the world. Almost two-thirds of the media coverage received was a homage or dedication to Maria Jammal for winning the FPdGi Award, and the impact was incredible. Everything from Maria’s interview in Spain, pre-ceremony video about her work and her empowering speech has been extensively covered nation-wide in Spanish, translated into multiple different languages and spread on a global level, giving us the opportunity to become familiar with our potential audience.

Among our media successes in 2019, we have had the opportunity to speak on a national radio station in the United States. Dr. Essam Daod was invited by the courtesy of Wisconsin Public Radio (WPR) to record a podcast on the show “To the Best of Our Knowledge” with Steve Paulson. TTBOOK, offering a deep and meaningful conversation space with influencers from a variety of fields, allowed Dr. Daod to share stories about himself, Humanity Crew, and all things relevant. The podcast will be heard from over 200 radio stations across the United States. Stay tuned for the published podcast.
SOCIAL MEDIA
As mentioned before, Humanity Crew has been putting all hands on deck to raise more international awareness, and social media has been our main and largest platform to doing so. Along with raising awareness, social media has been our most crucial tool to acknowledging success, communicating important information to the public, and campaigning for projects. Our Facebook page has over 20K likes, and our Instagram account has accumulated over 3K followers. This year, we also focused more on showing the public that we are working restlessly to bring mental health aid to the forefront of refugee emergency relief. This was done through highlighting our professional field volunteers’ hard work, participating in various international human rights and mental health awareness campaigns and charity events, and showcasing our activities in the field with our international community of supporters.

NEWSLETTERS
Humanity Crew distributes newsletters to our friends, supporters, donors and the interested public to connect with them on a personal level, and to build a sense of community. Our newsletter is sent out via email once every 3 months on a regular basis, and on an ad hoc basis if there is a special occasion or news that we would like to share with our community. The newsletter consists of updates from the headquarters or the field, photos or videos of our activities, and upcoming events. We recently started to include a section that is called “Meet our Team”. When the Humanity Crew’s team is traveling to a certain destination for a conference, lecture or event, we let our community know so they can contact us if they want to have a personal meet-up, or host any of our crew members for an event. In 2019, we have published five seasonal newsletters and a special occasion one.
